CONTENTS

Introduction
J. Gray (Eugene, OR, U.S.A.) VII
Evolution of the freshwater ecosystem: the fossil record
J. Gray (Eugene, OR, U.S.A.) 1
Lacustrine varve formation through time
R. Y. Anderson and W. E. Dean (Denver, CO, U.S.A.) 215
Biological and sedimentary facies of Australian salt lakes
P. De Deckker (Clayton, Vict., Australia) 237
Freshwater fungi: fossil record and paleoecological potential
M. A. Sherwood-Pike (Eugene, OR, U.S.A.) 271
Chrysophycean microfossils in paleolimnological studies
J. P. Smol (Kingston, Ont., Canada) 287
Fossil diatoms and Neogene paleolimnology
J. Platt Bradbury (Denver, CO, U.S.A.) 299
Freshwater macrophytes in palaeolimnology
M. E. Collinson (London, England) 317
Fossil pigments in paleoecology and paleolimnology
J. E. Sanger (Delaware, OH, U.S.A.) 343
Lacustrine thecamoebians (mainly arcellaceans) as potential tools for palaeolimnological interpretations
F. S. Medioli and D. B. Scott (Halifax, N.S., Canada) 361
Utilization of freshwater sponges in paleolimnological studies
F. W. Harrison (Cullowhee, NC, U.S.A.) 387
Conchostraca
P. W. Frank (Eugene, OR, U.S.A.) 399
Guidelines and limitations to cladoceran paleoecological interpretations
M. C. Whiteside and M. R. Swindoll (Duluth, MN, U.S.A.) 405
Paleoecology of limnic ostracodes: a review of some major topics
P. Carbonel (Bordeaux, France), J.-P. Colin (Bègles, France), D. L. Danielopol (Mondsee, Austria), H. Löffler (Wien, Austria) and I. Neustrueva (Leningrad, U.S.S.R.) 413
An account of the techniques using ostracodes in palaeolimnology in Australia
P. De Deckker (Clayton, Vict., Australia) 463
The historical ecology of aquatic insects: an overview
R. J. Wootton (Exeter, U.K.) 477
The use of caddisflies (Trichoptera) in palaeoecology
N. E. Williams (Birmingham, England) 493
The significance of chironomid analysis (Insecta: Diptera) for paleolimnological research
W. Hofmann (Plön, F.R.G.) 501
Aspects of freshwater mollusc ecological biogeography
D. W. Taylor (Corvallis, OR, U.S.A.) 511
Fish taphonomy and environmental inference in paleolimnology
R. L. Elder (Oberlin, OH, U.S.A.) and G. R. Smith (Ann Arbor, MI, U.S.A.) 577
Paleoecology and sedimentology of a Late Triassic lake, Culpeper Basin, Virginia, U.S.A.
P. J. W. Gore (Atlanta, GA, U.S.A.) 593
Reconstruction of ancient lake environments using both autochthonous and allochthonous fossils
M. V. H. Wilson (Edmonton, Alta., Canada) 609
